The Rich Man and the Shoemaker

Once there lived a shoemaker next to a _____Adjective_____ man. He was a _____Adjective_____ and _____Adjective_____ person. Every day, the shoemaker sang lovely songs while he did his _____Adjective_____ work. All the _____Adjective_____ children in that _____Adjective_____ town loved to hear the shoe maker sing his _____Adjective_____ songs. They sat on _____Adjective_____ chairs and listened to him sing _____Adjective_____ songs.

The _____Adjective_____ man who lived next door, stayed awake every night counting his _____Adjective_____ _____Adjective_____ _____Adjective_____ coins. He tried to sleep during the day because he didn't sleep at night. He was very displeased with the shoemakers' singing. He found the songs to be _____Adjective_____ and _____Adjective_____. He wanted to put an end to the singing next door.

Every day while he was twisting and turning in his bed, the _____Adjective_____ man used to think, "What can I do to make the shoe maker stop singing?" One day the _____Adjective_____ man thought of a _____Adjective_____ plan. He called for the shoemaker. The shoemaker came and asked him what the matter was. The _____Adjective_____ man gave him a bag full of shiny _____Adjective_____ coins as a gift. The shoemaker was surprised, but happily took the _____Adjective_____ coins. The shoemaker then went home and stored the _____Adjective_____ coins in his attic. He could not stop thinking and worrying about somebody stealing his precious _____Adjective_____ coins. From that day onwards he stopped singing!
