The lost lemurs

The man looked at the Noun wrecked hut, his face obviously Verb - Past Participle that someone or something could actually live in this excuse of a home. His party of twelve had come to the island on Noun - Plural that a supposedly extinct Noun lived here. So far they had found nothing but remains of native human life that had definitely Verb - Past Participle long ago. "Mr.Hoblet! We found some Noun - Plural that might have been used to Noun something like them. It has a Noun design that the Noun is very excited about!" "What!" thought Mr.Hoblet 'I must go at once'

Mr. Hoblet pushed past the man and set off at a brisk walk towards the Noun. "As soon as I find this damn Noun I can get enough money to take over the world, Goon" Shouted Mr.Hoblet at the man. The goon Adverb rolled his eyes and watched Mr.Hoblett walk away. 'Soon he won't command me, soon we will rule the world' thought the goon.
