

Letter to the Editor

1. Proper Noun--Place
2. Proper Noun--Place
3. Noun - Plural
4. Verb - Past Tense
5. Noun - Plural
6. Verb - Past Tense
7. Noun - Plural
8. Verb--Present
9. Noun - Plural
10. Verb--Present
11. Noun - Plural
12. Noun - Plural
13. Noun
14. Verb--Present
15. Noun
16. Noun - Plural
17. Verb--Present
18. Verb - Present Ends In Ing
19. Noun - Plural
20. Verb--Present
21. Verb--Present
22. Noun

Letter to the Editor

There has been a lot of talk about the amount of crime in downtown proper noun--place lately and people wondering why there is so much. I think the answer is simple.

I have lived in proper noun--place all of my 62-plus years, and when I was growing up all the Noun - Plural were on the outskirts or in the country, mostly out of sight. People Verb - Past Tense them there because of the riffraff they attracted. Nowadays it seems the idea by city planners is to attract as many Noun - Plural as possible to downtown. They even Verb - Past Tense the Noun - Plural so they can verb--present on Sunday.

Attract Noun - Plural, then you verb--present Noun - Plural and with them comes crime. Close the beer joints disguised as Noun - Plural, get them out of town and the riffraff follows them and Noun goes down, leaving only law-abiding people to verb--present a safer Noun.

Noun - Plural don't need alcohol to be successful. Look around, there are lots of them around who don't verb--present alcohol, yet they thrive Verb - Present ends in ING good Noun - Plural at a fair price.

The ones who say they have to have alcohol sales to verb--present need people to verb--present the booze so they don't notice the Noun is terrible or overpriced.

