Auto-Correct Me if I'm Wrong

Thank you for the assistance you provided me with _____ Verb - Present Tense my (_____ Adverb device). I was in need of assistance in loading Charter email to the _____ Noun purchased for my _____ Noun for _____ Proper Noun. When I purchased the _____ Noun at the _____ Proper Noun _____ Proper Noun in Troy, MI the Sales Associate was unable to _____ Verb her email so I left the _____ Noun without her email account being set up. Because this was a _____ Proper Noun gift it was important for my _____ Noun email account to be set up at the time she received it on Christmas Day. Charter is not one of the _____ Adjective email providers on the iPad so the "Other" option was selected. When trying to load my mother's Charter email account, the iPad would not accept it saying it was an incorrect logon or password. This was not the case as I was able to log into her Charter email account on my computer (I set up her email for her so I have access to her passwords). My experience was being bounced back and forth between the Customer Service reps from both Apple and Charter. Both reps said the problem was not on their end and I should contact the other. Only until I was _____ Verb - Past Participle to you, was the problem was solved. You _____ Verb - Past Tense the suggestion of changing the _____ Noun on my mother's email account. Once this was done, her Charter email _____ Adverb loaded onto the iPad. This was a very frustrating experience and took many _____ Noun - Plural right before Christmas (which is already a stressful time of year!). The Sales Associate at the Apple store should have known of this issue (Charter is a big provider in Michigan). I also believe he should not have let a paying customer leave the Apple store with an incomplete set up. Secondly, Apple should have clear directions on their website to address these problems. As I _____ Verb - Past Tense on our phone call, only YOU, Teresa, were able to Verb my problem. I appreciate your Noun and tha
