Also today I learned that a _____ Noun dam's licking of the anogenital region of her pup is important for the development/ability of the pup's nervous system to control processes of urination and elimination. As well, the anogenital stimulated urination and defecation is ingested by the dam and that permits her to recycle more than 70% of the fluids and nutrients lost through nursing. Gotta love science! AND sharing what you've learned with the ones you love!
