It was a strange day at CCV. As the students arrived they noticed that all of the None-Plural had suddenly Verb-Past Tense. The wind started Verb-Present ends in ING and the doors Adjective open and closed. The tutors in the academic fitness center started to cry out for help because the None started Adjective on and off! As more students Verb-Present ends in S they noticed the None started to darken and all became silent. What's happening?, they cried out in fear. Then out of nowhere the Proper None appeared, and everything went back to Adverb. All through the halls stunned students stared at each other. What happened they asked? The advisors just smiled at each other and Adjective into the building. Was a dream or just another day at CCV?
