Honeybadger Don't Care, But I do!

Once upon a           Noun           there was a girl who met a           Noun          . She was totally into him from the get-go because he was           Adjective           and wasn't afraid to show his           Adjective                     Noun          . He also had the most incredible           Noun           she'd ever seen. And this was even before they'd           Verb - Past Tense           in           Location          ! After           Number           tries, they finally           Verb - Past Tense          . She pulled into his           Noun           and saw him and was super glad that she'd made the           Noun          . They ate fishy           Adjective                     Noun - Plural          , he went on a search for           Noun          , and they           Verb - Past Tense           under the           Adjective                     Noun          . He even took a           Noun           of them together because he said he was           Adjective           there would be many more           Noun - Plural          . She was so           Adjective           to hear that. She           Verb - Past Tense                     Adverb           for him , and is so           Adjective           that he           Adjective           her too .
