Heart of Darkness Mad Lib

He was an _____ Verb - Past Participle _____ Noun; he could fire up a vertical boiler. He was there below me, and, upon my word, to look at him was as edifying as seeing a _____ Noun in a parody of breeches and a feather hat, walking on his hind-legs. A few months of training had done for that really fine chap. He squinted at the steam-gauge and at the water-gauge with an evident effort of intrepidity--and he had filed teeth, too, the _____ Adjective _____ Noun, and the wool of his pate shaved into queer patterns, and three ornamental scars on each of his cheeks. He ought to have been clapping his hands and stamping his feet on the bank, instead of which he was hard at work, a _____ Noun to strange witchcraft, full of improving knowledge. He was _____ Adjective because he had been _____ Verb - Past Participle; and what he knew was this--that should the water in that transparent thing disappear, the _____ Adjective _____ Noun inside the boiler would get angry through the greatness of his thirst, and take a terrible vengeance. So he sweated and fired up and watched the glass _____ Adverb (with an impromptu charm, made of rags, tied to his arm, and a piece of polished bone, as big as a watch, stuck flatways through his lower lip), while the wooded banks slipped past us slowly, the short noise was left behind, the interminable miles of silence--and we crept on, towards Kurtz. But the snags were thick, the water was treacherous and shallow, the boiler seemed indeed to have a _____ Adjective _____ Noun in it, and thus neither that fireman nor I had any time to peer into our _____ Adjective _____ Noun - Plural.
