

alkdfja

1. Adjective
-

alkdfja

Wedding Adjective Libs remind me of my childhood-endlessly filling out my Mad Lib books. I use to be amazed at my ability to use the same adjective over and over, and still laugh hysterically at myself. Now, imagine having a Wedding Mad Libs guestbook! It's marriage advice from your friends and family, but with a fun twist. You can either set up a station for them to be filled out, or place one at each place setting at your reception. There's always that down time after the ceremony where the bride and groom are whisked off for pictures. This would be a good opportunity for your friends and family to fill them out. After they've been filled out, have your guests drop the custom color Mad Libs in a designated basket or box before leaving. You can even make a Mad Lib scrapbook by pairing them with photos from the wedding, stickers, or anything else that is a memento of your special day.