The Hound of the Baskervilles by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle

"How did you know what I was doing? I believe you have eyes in the back of your _____Part of Body_____."

"I have, at least, a well-polished, _____Adjective_____ coffee-pot in front of me," said he. "But, tell me, Watson, what do you make of our visitor's _____Noun_____? Since we have been so unfortunate as to miss him and have no notion of his errand, this _____Adjective_____ souvenir becomes of importance. Let me hear you reconstruct the _____Noun_____ by an examination of it."

"I think," said I, following as far as I could the methods of my companion, "that Dr. _____Last Name_____ is a successful, _____Adjective_____ _____Profession_____ man, well-esteemed since those who know him give him this mark of their appreciation."

"Good!" said Holmes. "_____Exclamation_____!" "I think also that the probability is in favour of his being a country practitioner who does a great deal of his _____Verb - Present ends in ING_____ on foot."

"Why so?"

"Because this stick, though originally a very handsome one has been so knocked about that I can hardly imagine a town practitioner carrying it. The thick-iron _____Noun_____ is worn down, so it is evident that he has done a great amount of _____ Verb - Present ends in ING _____ with it."

"_____ Exclamation _____!" said Holmes.
