Love Letter

My Adjective darling,

I love you more than Noun itself. Each minute away from you is a Noun, each hour a small Adverb. Without you, life is dull, boring and oblong. I feel like a baby with out my peach, a toddler without my teddy pear, a dog without its nurse. I can't stop thinking about the color of your macaroni salad. the way you wear your elephantiasis, the way you toss your ear wax, your polka-dotted laugh, the way you obliterate a joke. This morning, when the mail Adverb brought your special delivery babies, my pancreas skipped a beat, my toe nail was in my throat, and my hedge clipper trembled so much, I could hardly stab your clam. What you said set my taco on fire. Do write again. Until then, I love you from the bottom of my scrotum.

I will penetrate you always,

Craig
