The Emergency!

Not too early in the _____ Adjective morning of August 2003 did Andy Simons realize he had to go to the Veterinarian's Office to volunteer, which was his favorite thing to do. He could see the trees waving _____ Adjective in the morning breeze as he crossed the street, and the soccer stadium fanfare nearby along with the dejected expression of the losing team's _____ Noun. Andy sighed, no interferences were to distract him, he was only in his 30's and his hair was bright in color, and groomed nicely to impress the nurses. Little did he know that he was going to meet a troubled man with an emergency, and a secret... Not too long after he arrived did he get a call of a injured cat, he heard a loud "Bam! "as the Animal hospital's glass door shattered from a elderly Asian man rushing into the building! He had a bleeding cat cradled in his flimsy arms. The man introduced himself as _____ Name, and told Andy that somebody had tried to _____ Verb - Base Form his cat, he needed more evidence, was there an accomplice or witness? Will the criminal be able to prove an alibi which could not be shaken? Andy had to use some inductive reasoning to seek to supply some strong evidence for the culprit. All he knew is that he needed to use his problem solving skills and try to avoid misleading red herrings to figure this out... He realized that he was just a volunteer! Could he do anything? Then, Andy thought to himself.. "This is going to be a _____ Adjective day."
