John's First One

| Have you ever walked into a Place and found a Thing? |
|---|
| No, not the Adjective kind, but a Adjective Noun with Adjective Body |
| Part - Plural and Adjective Body Part ? The kind that snarls as you enter, like a beast about to |
| pounce? The kind that roots you to the spot with its sunken, hypnotic eyes, rendering you unable to flee as you |
| watch the uncoil from the shadows? Has your started racing |
| though your refuse to? Have you felt time slow as the crosses the |
| in the darkness of a blink? |
| Have you shuddered with when it places one Adjective atop your |
| Body Part and another under your Body Part so it can tilt you, exposing your Body Part? |
| Have you squirmed as its,, |
| Body Part, over your Body Part, to your Body Part, in a slithering search that's seeking |
| your artery? Have you felt its breath release in a hiss against your skin when it probes your |
| pulsethe flow that leads to your brain? Has its rested there, throbbing slightly as if savoring |
| the moment? Have you then experienced a sinking, sucking blackness as you discover that not all |
| Noun - Plural feed on bloodsome feed on? |
| Well, have you? |
| Maybe not. But let me rephrase the question: |
| Have you ever walked into a place and suddenly forgotten why you came in? |
