A Casual Day at VIS

This morning I woke up as usual and put on my favorite shoes. It felt like it was going to be a _____ Adjective day so I decided to have the _____ Noun for breakfast instead of my everyday _____ Noun. I met up with my best friend _____ name on the way, everybody always noticed Jo's large blue eyes, that look at you intently. On the train I noticed that people were staring at us, but of course I didn't pay much attention, because after all this is Austria and everybody always stares, especially if you speak English like Jo and I do. We got to school just before the bell rang and I ran up to class quickly. Naturally my homeroom teacher wasn't there so, I decided to use the bathroom quickly, I had drank a huge glass of milk that morning and I had needed to go to the bathroom since the train.
