Volleyball Rock! I luv volleyball!

Offseason-itis is a real condition. I'm not talking about slacking off or not having passion for your sport during the offseason. That's called being lazy and unmotivated. USC women's volleyball has been in the gym every day working hard toward our upcoming fall season.

Offseason-itis is that itch and the twitch you have to get involved in anything and everything on campus that you don't have the opportunity to do during the season. It hit our team hard this past week. We volunteered at two events and went to multiple sporting events, not to mention this past week was career week so many of us were at campus-wide networking events as well. It's been a lot of fun being immersed in all the campus activities.

The grand re-opening of Heritage Hall was a premier event to get involved in on campus. Heritage Hall is our trophy showcase, athletic administration hub and now houses locker rooms for women's _____Noun_____, _____Noun_____, _____Noun_____ and both of the golf teams. The building has been going through a $35 million renovation for the past year.
