Memories of My Father

My father was a Adjective man. He married my mother persons name when they were Number and got married at place - the pub - disneyland - my grandmas house etc. My mom was attracted to his Adjective smile and big plural body part, she loved the way his mustache would verb when he verb with ED. But just time frame - four minutes or eight years ago he suddenly passed away while verb with ING one day and we later learned from an autopsy that he had a Noun in his stomach. I will never forget the memories of him through out the years, like when he first taught me how to ride a transportation, he was there every verb of the way. Or when he threw me in the body of water - lake waterfall bath etc so I could get over my fear of verb with ING. He used to take my family member - sister uncle and I to place - the pub - disneyland - my grandmas house etc so we could play with the Noun - Plural, he would also wear plural clothing on his head and verb on our kitchen Noun to cheer us up, it always worked because he was so Adjective! Every holiday he would dress up like fiction character - batman superwoman toothfairy and hand out Noun - Plural, my mom would just verb every time. I miss his Adjective jokes, the sound of his sound - hiss knock squeek etc and how he would randomly verb us every day. He was the best dad a girl could verb!
