I like myself, but...

1. Pro	noun
--------	------	--	--

I like myself, but...

When I was smaller I could entertain for hours because I was my favorite person to spend to	time with. It didn't matter if grown ups weren't around or if other kids couldn't play with me, because I knew that	Ι was my own best friend.
As time went on, I started to learn that it is important to be liked by other people, but no one ever told me ex	kactly what that meant. I started to gather clues, from television and from gossip at school.

I started to feel like there was no way I could be all of the things that I thought I needed to be in order to be liked
