When we went on our trip to our beach house I saw a Preposition or subordinating conjunction come up out of the water. I swam out farther and farther into the ocean. I Verb - Past Tense. Something started swimming around me. It was slimey. It popped up with a big splash. It was a Noun. She was so Adverb. She had long Adjective hair with a shell crown and a blue tail. I asked her what her name was. She said her name was Avalon. She wanted to know if I wanted to be a mermaid for a day. Of course I Verb - Past Tense, but I didn't know how. Avalon said she didn't know how either, but that we can Verb. I quickly Verb - Past Tense goggles and a snorkle. Let's go. We swam out to this place she likes to call dolphin Noun. There were dolphins everywhere. It was amazing. Avalon let me swim with her favorite dolphin named Noun - Plural. He was Adverb fast. Preposition or subordinating conjunction we just went for a swim with all of these tropical fish. We swam Preposition or subordinating conjunction all of these amazing colorful fish. The sun started setting and I was done swimming for the day. Avalon took me back to the beach. Before I left I told her how Adjective I was for her taking me to dolphin cove. Avalon swam away. I swam back to shore to see my mom. Before we left I looked back into the ocean one last time. Avalon came up Preposition or subordinating conjunction the water and waved Noun.
