Once upon a time, long ago in the town of _____First Name of a Person_____ the fairy godmother of our heroine, _____Location_____, cast a spell on the surrounding lands. The curse meant that no one could see Emma until her 18th birthday. Invisible to all and therefore unwanted and un loved, she would have to wait the many years until at last she would find true love.

On the morning of her 18th birthday, men from all the towns in the county were suddenly swept away by feelings of _____Emotion_____ and _____Emotion_____. They set out to find the beautiful heroine and win her _____Part of Body_____ in marriage.

They knew that no ordinary wooing would win the hand of the fair maiden but that only the finest of gifts to show their esteem would make them stand out as worthy of Emma's hand. The men brought the finest _____Metal_____ and _____Somethign that sparkles_____ from around the world. They rode in on mighty horses with grand entourages of _____Profession_____ in attendance.

Emma looked around and was disappointed at what she saw. Nowhere in the crowd of admirers was her true love. Puzzled and sad she retreated to her room to ask her fairy _____Mythical Creater_____ why true love was not here .

Ah

... the man you seek does not come with fine gifts and entourages, no. You have waited many years to be seen and to be found. But true love will not come to find you. You must go and find it.

Inspired, our now visible heroine left her home and set forth in the great world to seek her true love. But what she found was that being seen was not such a blessing. People threw rocks at her and stopped her from walking to wherever she chose. Emma realized then that being invisible was not so bad.
