The Dentist

Dr. I. Ball was my dentist when I was in _____Noun_____ _____Noun_____. He had _____Adjective_____ teeth and _____Adjective_____ breath, and always insisted on talking to me when he was poking around inside my mouth. His _____Adjective_____ hair stuck up everywhere, and thankfully, his mask hid his creepy smile. He had lots of inspirational _____Noun_____ posters hanging from the walls, and had weird sculptures of _____Noun_____. He was pretty nice; he always gave me a _____Noun_____ or some candy after my appointment. Sometimes, he'd bring his pet _____Noun_____ _____Noun_____ to entertain the patients in the waiting room, but it would make the entire office _____Adjective_____. I miss him when I think about it, but then I remember how _____Adjective_____ it was to have those weird tools stuck in my mouth, and I don't miss him so much anymore.
