

Angela and Elvis's Great Adventure

1. Noun
-

Angela and Elvis's Great Adventure

When Angela and Elvis fell in love, they often talked of having a family. "I want us to have [number]kids!"

Elvis said. "I'd be happy with [Noun]," smiled Angela. "Well, no matter how many we have, I know we'll be [adjective]."

Soon the [adjective] day arrived when Angela announced to Elvis, "We're going to have a [noun]!" Elvis was so [adjective], he grabbed Angela and planted a big [noun] on her cheek. "It doesn't matter if it's a boy or a [noun], just so it's [adjective]."

When Angela and Elvis told Amber about the baby, she exclaimed, "[exclamation]! I'm going to be a [noun]!"

The whole family was happy to hear the [adjective]news.

It wasn't long before Angela developed cravings for [food] and [food]. Sometimes she felt [adjective] in the morning, but by afternoon she was [adjective]. As the baby grew, her [body part] got larger and larger. Angela had to buy maternity [plural article of clothing]. Elvis smiled and said, "Angela, you look so [adjective]." "But I feel so [adjective]!" Angela wailed.

Months passed, and the big day finally arrived. Angela exclaimed, "[exclamation]! My [noun] just broke!!! We'd better rush to (the) [location]!" Elvis shouted, "[exclamation]!! This is it!"

After [number] hours of labor, a beautiful baby girl was born, weighing [number] pounds [number] ounces. The doctor exclaimed, "That's the [adjective ending in -est] baby I've ever delivered!!"

The proud parents gazed lovingly at their little bundle of [noun starting with J], and Elvis said, "That was so much fun, I think we should have [number]more!" "You silly [noun]!" Angela said.

And they lived [adverb ending in -ly] ever after!