Sense and Sensibility 3: A Misunderstanding Understood

His Part of Body, as he entered the room, was not too happy, even for Elinor. His Part of Body was white with agitation, and he looked as if fearful of his Noun, and conscious that he Verb - Past Tense no kind one. Mrs. Dashwood, however, Verb - Present ends in ING, as she trusted, to the wishes of that daughter, by whom she then meant in the warmth of her heart to be guided in every thing, met with a look of forced complacency, gave him her Part of Body, and wished him Noun.

He coloured, and Verb - Past Tense out an unintelligible reply. Elinor's Part of Body had moved with her mother's, and, when the moment of Noun was over, she wished that she had shaken Part of Body with him too. But it was then too late, and with a countenance meaning to be Adjective, she sat down again and talked of the Noun - Plural.

Marianne had retreated as much as possible out of sight, to Verb - Base Form her distress; and Margaret, understanding some part, but not the whole of the Noun, thought it Adjective on her to be dignified, and therefore took a Noun as far from him as she could, and maintained a Adjective silence.

When Elinor had ceased to rejoice in the dryness of the Noun, a very awful pause took place. It was put an end to by Mrs. Dashwood, who felt obliged to hope that he had Verb - Past Tense Mrs. Ferrars very well.

In

a hurried manner, he replied in the affirmative.

Another Noun.

Elinor Verb - Present ends in ING to exert herself, though fearing the Noun of her own voice, now said,

"Is Mrs. Ferrars at Longstaple?"

"At Longstaple!" he replied, with an Noun of surprise.-- "No, my mother is in town."

"I meant," said Elinor, taking up some Noun - Plural from the table, "to inquire for Mrs. EDWARD Ferrars."

She dared not Verb - Base Form up;--but her mother and Marianne both turned their Part of Body on him. He Verb - Past Tense, seemed perplexed, looked doubtingly, and, after some hesitation, Verb - Past Tense,--

"Perhaps you mean--my brother--you mean Mrs.--Mrs. ROBERT Ferrars."

"Mrs. Robert Ferrars!"--was Verb - Past Tense by Marianne and her mother in an accent of the Adjective - Ends in EST amazement;--and though Elinor could not speak, even HER Part of Body were fixed on him with the same impatient wonder. He Verb - Past Tense from his seat, and Verb - Past Tense to the window, apparently from not knowing what to do; took up a pair of Noun - Plural that lay there, and while spoiling both them and their Noun by Verb - Present ends in ING the latter to pieces as he spoke, said, in a Adjective voice,

"Perhaps you do not know--you may not have heard that my brother is lately married to--to the youngest--to Miss First Name of a Person Steele."

His words were echoed with unspeakable astonishment by all but Elinor, who sat with her Part of Body leaning over her Noun, in a state of such agitation as made her hardly know where she was.

"Yes," said he, "they were married last week, and are now at Location."

Elinor could sit it no longer. She almost Verb - Past Tense out of the room, and as soon as the door was closed, Verb - Past Tense into tears of joy, which at first she thought would never Verb - Base Form.

Edward, who had till then looked any where, rather than at her, saw her Verb - Base Form away, and perhaps saw--or even heard, her emotion; for immediately afterwards he fell into a reverie, which no remarks, no inquiries,
