Not So Happily Ever After

Once upon a time, Prince Charming and Cinderella were married and had a family together. Now, unfortunately not all stories end happily ever after, and one day Cinderella filed for divorce and moved out of the castle. However, Cinderella soon discovered it was hard to make ends meet on her own, and ended up getting public assistance to help out until Prince Charming started paying Child Support. Shortly thereafter, Prince Charming was _____Verb - Past Participle_____ with a _____Proper Noun_____ along with an attached _____Noun_____. Prince Charming agreed with the _____Noun - Plural_____ included with the _____Proper Noun_____ so he did not file an _____Noun_____ to the _____Noun_____. After _____Number_____ days had passed from the day Prince Charming was _____Verb - Past Participle_____, the Local Child Support Agency or _____Proper Noun_____, filed a _____Proper Noun_____, a _____Noun_____, along with a _____Proper Noun_____ for the Commissioner to sign. After thorough review, the Court Clerk processed and entered the _____Proper Noun_____ and _____Proper Noun_____, then submitted the _____Noun_____. The Commissioner signed the _____Proper Noun_____ because everything contained therein matched the _____Noun_____ and no _____Noun - Plural_____ had been made. From that point on, Prince Charming and Cinderella lived happily ever after - each in their own separate castles, living their own separate lives - until the holidays came and no one could agree where the kids would spend Christmas; but that's a story for a different day.
