The Best Juan

Once upon a time there was a _____Adjective_____ princess. This Princess was the talk of _____Location_____. Not only was she gorgeous, but she was _____Adjective_____, witty, independent, _____Adjective_____, strong and _____Adjective_____.

One day it was time for her to settle on a _____Noun_____. She wanted to be with a man that could rival her humor , match her intelligence, handle her independence, parallel her generosity and be strong enough to support her as well as be unwaveringly faithful. So she sent out _____Noun - Plural_____ on a quest to see if there existed such a man. And all three messengers each brought back a candidate. Each named Juan.

One by one the princess put them to the test. She put them in situations that would test their character and would show their true colors.

The first Juan was _____Adjective_____. He was smart, too. But he was arrogant. He had no compassion, as he had never experienced hardship and had a rock for a heart. So the princess _____Verb - Past Tense_____ him.

The second Juan was _____Adjective_____. He had mountains of gold. He was physically strong, generous and was okay with her independence, though he did not intend to support it. He brought her _____Adjective_____ tokens of his superficial feelings for her. He made promises she could tell were _____Adverb_____ and not at all noble. So she dismissed him, as well.

The last Juan came forward and spoke softly. Upon further observation the princess noticed he was gentle in appropriate situations and strong when he needed to be. He was _____Adverb_____ handsome and wickedly funny. He gave to the less fortunate of his own accord and encouraged her independence all while remaining right by her side. His faithfulness was the only thing she could not judge, for there is no one situation that could tell such a quality in a person. But she trusted him. He was honest and _____Adjective_____.

In the end she chose the last Juan. He stole something of hers and she had no intention of getting it back from him. All she asked was that he keep it safe from harm. He accepted and they lived _____Adverb_____ ever after.
