Ebay

The online auction web site was founded in San Jose, California in 1995 by computer programmer

_____ Name of a person _____.

The very first item sold on eBay was a broken _____ Noun _____ Noun for $14.83. Millions of collectibles, appliances, _____ Plural noun furniture, _____ Plural noun vehicles, and other miscellaneous items are listed, bought, and _____ Past tense verb daily. In 2004, eBay launched its Business & Industrial category, breaking into the industrial surplus business. Some items are rare and valuable, while many others are _____ Adjective gizmos that would have been discarded if not for the thousands of eager bidders worldwide. Anything can be sold as long as it is not illegal.

Controversy has arisen over certain items put up for bid. For instance, in late 1999 a man offered one of his _____ Plural noun for auction on eBay, attempting to profit from the potentially lucrative market for transplantable _____ Noun organs. On other occasions, _____ Plural noun and even entire towns have been listed, often as a joke or to garner free publicity.
