Sonnet-Writing: To Himself - CATHERINE MATEL - MADDIE PEAKE

Young men should not write _____type of literature_____, if they dream

Some day to reach the bright bare seats of fame:

To such, _____dark adjective_____ thoughts and mighty feelings seem

As though, like foreign things, they rarely came.

Eager as men when haply they have _____Verb - Past Tense_____

Of some new songster, some gay-feathered bird,

That hath over blue seas strayed in hope to find

In our thin foliage here a _____Adjective_____ _____random object_____

Fain would they catch the bright _____food_____ in their mind,

And cage them into sonnets as they come.

No; they should serve their wants most sparingly,

Till the ripe time of _____fruit_____, when young thoughts fail,

Then their sad sonnets, like old _____teachers name_____ might be

Merry as youth, and yet grey-haired and hale.
