

Sonnet Writing to Himself: Haley & Alex

1. Adjective Describing A Person
2. Poetry Genre
3. Adjective That Ends In Est
4. Something That Rhymes With Mighty
5. Feeling
6. Something That Flys
7. Adjective That Ends In Est
8. Feeling
9. Season
10. Part Of The Body
11. Poetry Genre
12. Three Syllable Adverb
13. Feeling
14. Poetry Genre
15. Feeling
16. Adjective Describing A Person

Sonnet Writing to Himself: Haley & Alex

_____ adjective describing a person men should not write _____ poetry genre, if they dream

Some day to reach the bright bare seats of fame:

To such, _____ adjective that ends in EST thoughts and _____ something that rhymes with mighty feelings seem

As though, like foreign things, they rarely came.

_____ feeling as men when haply they have heard

Of some new songster, some gay-feathered _____ something that flies,

That hath over _____ adjective that ends in EST seas strayed in _____ feeling to find

In our thin foliage here a _____ season home

Fain would they catch the bright things in their _____ part of the body,

And cage them into _____ poetry genre as they come.

No; they should serve their wants most _____ three syllable adverb,

Till the ripe time of song, when young thoughts fail,

Then their _____ feeling _____ poetry genre, like old bards, might be _____ feeling as youth, and yet _____ adjective describing a person and hale.