Sonnet Writing: To Himself- Bradley, Matt, Kellie

Young men should not write _____genre of poetry plural_____, if they dream

Some day to reach the bright bare seats of _____noun rhyming with fame_____:

To such, sweet thoughts and mighty feelings seem

As though, like _____adjective_____ things, they rarely came.

Eager as men when haply they have heard

Of some new songster, some gay-feathered _____animal_____,

That hath over _____color other than blue_____ seas strayed in hope to find

In our thin foliage here a summer _____Noun_____

Fain would they catch the bright things in their _____part of the body_____,

And cage them into sonnets as they come.

No; they should serve their wants most sparingly,

Till the ripe time of song, when young thoughts fail,

Then their sad sonnets, like old _____noun plural_____, might be _____two syllable adjective_____ as _____noun correlating to previous adjective_____, and yet grey-haired and hale.
