Baby Bath: Getting Ready

The first bath will be a _____ bath. Pick a warm room with a _____ surface, like a bathroom or kitchen counter, a changing table, or a _____. Cover the surface with a thick towel. Make sure the room temperature is at least _____ degrees Fahrenheit, because babies chill easily.

Assemble all the baby _____ products you will need:

Baby bath sponge or clean wash _____ (double-rinsed)

_____ blanket or bath towel (a _____ one is nice)

Clean _____

Clean clothes

Vaseline and gauze (if you have a _____ boy)

Warm

water (not hot)

Important: Never leave your baby alone in a bath -- not even for Length of time. If you must get to the Noun, the stove, or whatever, take baby with you.

Baby Bath: Time for a Proper Noun Bath

Adjective sponge baths are perfect for the first few weeks until the umbilical Noun falls off, the Noun heals, and the navel heals completely.

The basics of bathing a baby:

First, undress baby -- cradling the Part of Body with one hand. Leave the diaper on (wash that area last).

Wrap baby in a Noun, exposing only those areas that you are washing.

Using a baby bath sponge or wash cloth, Verb - Base Form one area at a time. Start behind the Part of Body, then move to the neck, elbows, Part of Body, between fingers and toes. Pay attention to creases under the Part of Body, behind the ears, around the neck.

The hair comes toward the end of bath time so baby doesn't get Adjective. While newborns don't have much hair, you can sponge the few wisps that are there. To avoid getting eyes wet, tip the Part of Body back just a little. There's no need for shampoo; just use water.

Now

it's time to remove the diaper and sponge baby's belly, bottom, and genitals.

Wash little girls from front to back. If there's a little Part of Body discharge, don't worry -- and don't try to wipe it all away. If a little boy is Verb - Past Tense, leave the Part of Body alone. If Verb -

Past Tense, don't wash the head of the Part of Body until it's healed.

Gently Verb - Base Form baby dry. Rubbing the skin will irritate it.

Bath time is over, and your fresh little baby is ready for a clean diaper and clothes!
