First bath

Warm

Get the ready like all the "firsts" to come, baby's bath is a Adjective event. In fact, every time can be a special for bonding with your newborn. Cooing and thrives on your Adjective touch.
Baby Bath: Getting Ready
The first bath will be a bath. Pick a warm room with a surface, like a bathroom or kitchen counter, a changing table, or a Cover the surface with a thick towel. Make sure the room temperature is at least degrees Fahrenheit, because babies chill easily.
Assemble all the baby products you will need:
Baby bath sponge or clean wash (double-rinsed)
blanket or bath towel (a one is nice) CleanNoun
Clean clothes
Vaseline and gauze (if you have a boy)

water (not hot) Important: Never leave your baby alone in a bath not even for If you must get to the Noun, the stove, or whatever, take baby with you.
Baby Bath: Time for a Proper Noun Bath sponge baths are perfect for the first few weeks until the umbilical falls off, the heals, and the navel heals completely.
The basics of bathing a baby:
First, undress baby cradling the with one hand. Leave the diaper on (wash that area last).
Wrap baby in a, exposing only those areas that you are washing.
Using a baby bath sponge or wash cloth, one area at a time. Start behind the Part of Body , then move to the neck, elbows, Part of Body , between fingers and toes. Pay attention to creases under the, behind the ears, around the neck.
The hair comes toward the end of bath time so baby doesn't get While newborns don't have much hair, you can sponge the few wisps that are there. To avoid getting eyes wet, tip the back just a little. There's no need for shampoo; just use water.

Now

it's time to remove the diaper and sponge baby's belly, bottom, and genitals.
Wash little girls from front to back. If there's a little discharge, don't worry and don't try to wipe it all away. If a little boy is Past Tense, don't wash the head of the Part of Body until it's healed.
Gently baby dry. Rubbing the skin will irritate it.
Bath time is over, and your fresh little baby is ready for a clean diaper and clothes!
