The New England Patriots are the best team in the last 15 years. However they are also the football equivalent of infanticide. Or worse. You can be really great at something like name a really talented person but also at the same time have spent most of your life destroying enemies like name the person you hate the most in the history of the world besides Hitler. In fact, in today's society of selfies, plural version of taco bell menu item that would give you the runs, and name a hyper specific subgenre of pornography, you have to imagine that anyone who has died besides Hitler - a person who tried to live their life the right way - must be rolling over in their grave.

Has the Patriot way become more like easy street? Is this what our founding fathers had in mind when least racist slave-owning United States president ratified the worst thing you've ever read? Did dsfa's victims die for nothing?

Honestly it seems honest players like name any white athlete it doesn't even have to be football wouldn't have a prayer in today's NFL that seems more conducive to rap artist culture than white person with name that starts with same letter as rap artist.

At first I thought the Patriots should be punished and punished hard. I thought the NFL should take a person within the Patriots organization whose not a player, owner, or coach and write 2 sentences describing the worst kind of torture you can possibly imagine. But maybe I'm just old fashioned. This would accomplish two things:

1. It would demonstrate that the NFL is not a braindead a dumb animal walking around with its tongue sticking out looking like name anyone whose coached the Browns, Redskins, or Raiders in the last 20 years on asdfs.

name a drug of your choice

2. it would give motivation to Belichick and Brady to win one for the lowly person they put in harms way. Its like when Braveheart intentionally gets his wife killed just so he can get that extra edge of motivation to go out there and give 110%. You have to make sacrifices like Jesus or that time I describe a time you did something that was a mild inconvenience. Bradys going to go out for the coinflip with a patch on his shirt for the Pats-y that took the blame and instead of electing to receive he's just going to tell Richard Sherman to put his head between his own legs and kiss his own arse. Choose either the word "Heck" or "Shoot" your choice, I mean youd think Sherman might actually enjoy the opportunity to literally talk pick name for feces for a change.

Meanwhile Pete Carroll would be to the moon and back, or at least a sound stage in West Hollywood and back with glee. No reporters are filling up their stenographer notebooks writing thousand word columns about how Marshawn Lynchs lack of talking doesnt give them anything to write about when the Patriots are having more balls removed then name a famous person who had testicular cancer. Its ok cancers funny when your talking about peoples nuts Im pretty sure not to be offensive.

But all of this is a bit short sighted. I cant help but feel that theres something more nefarious going on. Perhaps the greatest trick that Tom Brady ever pulled was making you think that deflategate was the worse thing he was doing. Brady wanted to get caught to hide something more sinister. I can guarnetee you theres a whole nother level of cheating going on below the surface that will make deflating a football look like nothing more then deflating a football in comparison. Its kind of ironic to think that the master of the cutoff sweatclothes has something up his sleeve, but I can smell it. Its a slippery slope when you deal with Touchdown Tom and Belichick, and folks this is one BradyBill that needs to be stopped dead in its tracks before there full plan is set into motion. If we remain hyperfocused on the distraction that is DeflateGate you can bet your bottom dollar that the Patriots will be finding another, worse way to to cheat there way back into the winners circle. Its times like these that we need to remain vigilant and remind ourselves that the last person who used improper inflation as a excuse to rise to power was- you guessed it- just write Hitler in this blank.
