Mornings with Nana

It was a Adjective day in Franklin.

There are tens of Adjective little people running around the house screaming for Breakfast, but I'll let Lorraine handle that, this is my vacation after all. Time for a Verb - Base Form across the street to Honey dew Donuts, they really have the best Noun - Plural and the coffee is ok too.

exclamation That was a darn good coffee! Now I am ready to handle the Adjective screaming monsters with Lorraine.

Number hours later.... exclamation I can't take it anymore! These Adjective kids are Adverb killing me. I need a break, a quick Verb - Base Form to star market will clear my mind.

Now, I just need a ride.

Oh Look! There is Craig! He will surely give his Nana a ride to the store! Hey Grandchilds name, I mean Grandchilds name oh shoot Grandchilds name I mean CRAIG! Please take me down the street to the store. Thank goodness that is over and the Adjective kids have all gone home to their parents, I am ready for a Nap!
