Dead Dental Assistant

_____ Verb - Past Tense had worked for BDG for _____ Noun - Plural years. She was reliable and _____ Adjective. The patients and her fellow team members at _____ Proper Noun dental adored her. She was the kind of person _____ Noun wanted to be around. There was one thing though... around _____ Number: _____ Number each day, she became very _____ Adjective. It was almost like she wasn't herself. When the team would speak to her she would _____ Noun. Of course, the team thought it was _____ Adjective but because everyone _____ Verb - Past Tense her so much, it was something they were willing to overlook. Another quality she possessed was one no one could ignore... her beautiful, _____ Verb - Present Tense smile. We all know that people who work in dentistry take such _____ Adjective care of their teeth, but _____ Proper Noun didn't. She never had a cleaning, a cavity filled, or even _____ Adjective treatment. She had worked for years without so much as a _____ Noun. One day Dr. _____ Proper Noun asked to take a look. When she refused, he pulled her _____ Noun to see how long it had been. To his shock and _____ Noun she had been seen _____ Number years ago. "Impossible" he said out loud. He looked at her date of birth... 1901. This must be a _____ Noun. He googled her name immediately. He found a _____ Noun and a photo of her. In an obituary dated 1952.
