From the President

Dear Hebrew collective noun,

Thank you for your continued membership in our Adjective home. To say that it has been an honor to be president is an Noun. I thank you for your Noun and for your Noun. It has been a Adjective time for all of us. I recognize that many are still Adjective and Adjective, while others are Adjective and anxious to move on. Please be Adverb with each other as we Verb - Base Form the Adjective Noun in our community's history.

Be Adverb to those whose feelings you may not share. It is Adverb to be Adverb with those with whom we disagree. As we read in Pirkei Avot: "Do not Verb - Base Form your fellow until you have Verb - Base Form in his Noun." (2:5).

In the past months, we have Verb - Past Tense many small group meetings for members to Verb - Base Form and to Verb - Base Form. I was Adjective by the Adjective of JRC members who Verb - Past Tense in the Adjective work of Verb - Present ends in ING something that did not correspond to their understanding of the Adjective Noun. I also Verb - Past Tense the Adjective Noun and Noun as Collective noun embraced each other. Noun - Plural may not have been changed, but Noun - Plural were Verb - Past Tense. This is the Adjective definition of Teshuvah, returning not only to a Adjective state, but to each other. As with most Adjective things in life, Teshuvah is a Noun, not a Noun. and I urge you to continue to reach out to each other with Noun, Noun and Noun.

Hebrew collective noun, as my term as JRC president comes to a close, I can only Verb - Base Form the many Adjective Collective noun of this congregation who helped us Verb - Base Form the Adjective waters to Adjective harbor. They are too Adverb to name, but they have my Adjective Noun and Noun.

Finally, let me just say, thank you for this honor and Adjective Noun. I am forever changed.

Hebrew term that may or may not be used correctly,

David
