The hero saves the day!

A long, long time ago, there once was a girl called Name of bike shop. Whilst, she was a very Adjective young lady, some Noun - Plural thought her Adjective because of her Adjective hobby of VERBING.

Name of bike shop took this all in Noun until one day, a SCARY THING Verb - Past Tense to the Name of place, where Name of bike shop lived. The SCARY THING commanded Name of bike shop, you must take me to where you do your VERBING Adverb! Name of bike shop was not Verb - Past Tense by this mandate but she showed the SCARY THING to the VERBING tower just the same. When the pair arrived at the tower, they Verb - Past Tense to the Noun. Adverb, the SCARY THING slammed the Noun and exclaimed, YOU MUST TELL ME THE Noun of VERBING!!!!

Name of bike shop shouted onomatopoeia!!! and Adverb pulled taught the Noun around the SCARY THING legs, stringing it Adverb in the VERBING tower. Name of bike shop called down from the tower to the Noun - Plural of Name of place, "I've Verb - Past Tense the SCARY THING!!!!" just in time for the bells to chime Number.

THE END
