the crow and the pitcher

A Animal, half-dead with thirst, came upon a Noun which had once been Adjective of Noun; but when the Animal put its beak into the mouth of the Pitcher he found that only very Adjective water was left in it, and that he could not reach far enough down to get at it. He tried, and he tried, but at last had to give up in despair. Then a thought came to him, and he took a Noun and dropped it into the Noun. Then he took another Noun and Verb - Base Form it into the Noun. Then he took another Noun and Verb - Base Form that into the Noun. Then he took another Noun and dropped that into the Noun. Then he took another Noun and Verb - Base Form that into the Noun. Then he took another pebble and dropped that into the Noun. At last, at last, he saw the water mount up near him, and after casting in a few more Noun he was able to quench his thirst and save his life.

Little by little does the trick.
