History is never Adjective. The Verb - Present ends in ING of a history requires a perspective, a purpose , and a Noun. It demands the Noun choose their words Adverb to convey their Noun. The act of choosing what to include in even something as Adjective as a Noun demands a judgment of what Noun - Plural hold enough importance that others should know of them.
Verb - Present ends in ING a history requires having a reason that this history should be Verb - Past Tense, a reason strong enough that it can be given to others as a Noun for the time spent writing it. No matter the Noun period or background, all authors enter a project with an Noun of their own, a culture and a tradition in which they have been Verb - Past Tense, in which they live, and in which they Verb - Infinitive.
