The History of Girl Guides

Almost _____ Number years ago, across the _____ Noun in England, lived a _____ Noun named Robert Baden-Powell. He was very _____ Adjective. He had been the leader of English _____ Noun - Plural in a war far away in Africa. During that war he had discovered that _____ Noun - Plural could be very useful and do things that grown-ups could not. But when Robert Baden-Powell returned to England he found lots of _____ Noun - Plural who got into trouble or were _____ Adjective because they had nothing exciting to do.

Do you know what Robert Baden-Powell never even thought about? He never once thought about _____ Noun - Plural! What he did think about was writing a book. He called his book, " _____ Verb - Present Tense for _____ Noun - Plural." It was full of information about things he knew Boys were interested in. It was also full of things _____ Noun - Plural could do, especially outdoors, like _____ Verb - Present Tense over an open _____ Noun, tracking animals, sleeping in _____ Noun - Plural and even under the _____ Noun - Plural.

Lots of Boys read Robert Baden-Powell's book, Scouting for Boys. They got together and did the things he suggested in the book. They called themselves _____ Proper Noun Scouts and often got a _____ Noun to help them.

One day in 1909, Robert Baden-Powell invited all _____ Adverb anywhere in England, Scotland and Wales to come to London to the Crystal Palace for a rally. A rally is a big gathering, something like a _____ Noun and a party together. The Crystal Palace was an _____ Adjective building all made of _____ Noun. That's why they called it the Crystal Palace. It was an exhibition building in a park. It was so big that _____ Noun - Plural grew inside it.

Robert

Baden-Powell wondered how many _____ Verb - Past Tense were calling themselves Scouts. That's why he had the rally at the Crystal Palace. He knew they would be excited about going there. He was absolutely amazed when 11,000 _____ Noun - Plural turned up! They all paraded past him and saluted him and the other important _____ Noun - Plural who were with him. He was very pleased to see all the _____ Noun - Plural. But then - right at the end of the parade, came an even bigger surprise. About 24 _____ Noun - Plural! Robert Baden-Powell had no idea that _____ Noun - Plural had been reading his book, Scouting for _____ Proper Noun - Plural, and trying out the same exciting things as their brothers.

Some _____ Verb - Past Tense had even written him letters. They hadn't signed the letters 'Jane' or 'Sarah' or their own names. They just signed their initials, hoping Robert Baden-Powell would think that _____ Noun - Plural had written the letters. That's exactly what he thought. Those _____ Noun - Plural were pretty _____ Adjective.

When the _____ Verb - Past Tense marched past, Robert Baden-Powell stopped them and said, "Who are you?"

The _____ Verb - Past Tense answered, "We're the Girl Scouts." "There aren't any," he said. "Oh, yes, there are," the _____ Noun - Plural said. "We're the Girl Scouts!"

One Girl said, "Please, sir. We're the Wolf Patrol of the Girl Scouts, and we want to do Scouting just like the Boys."

And that's how Girl _____ Verb - Past Tense began. Robert Baden-Powell asked his sister, Agnes, to set up their own organization. He called them Girl Guides. And from that beginning, with those _____ Adjective Girls, has grown the wonderful worldwide sisterhood of _____ Verb - Present Tense that we all belong to today.
