

African Flora, Fauna, and Death

1. Noun - Plural
2. Noun - Plural
3. Landform - Plural
4. Cardinal Direction
5. Number - Small
6. Measurement
7. Adjective - One
8. Adjective - One
9. Part Of Body
10. Verb - Base Form
11. Rodent
12. Part Of Body
13. Rodent
14. Bird
15. Adjective
16. Sound
17. Shiny Object
18. Part Of Body

African Flora, Fauna, and Death

Dear           Noun - Plural           and           Noun - Plural          , when traveling through the           Landform - Plural           of           Cardinal Direction           Africa, don't cross paths with the herb-lisk. The herb-lisk, although only           Number - Small                     Measurement           tall, has a           Adjective - One           breath so           Adjective - One           that it created the very desert it lives in. Its deadly           Part of Body           will kill anyone who dares           Verb - Base                     Form           at it. If you do happen to come across the herb-lisk, make sure you have a           Rodent           on you, because they are the only creatures immune to the herb-lisk's           Part of Body          . If your           Rodent           fails to kill the herb-lisk, bring out a           Bird          . The herb-lisk will flee upon hearing its           Adjective                     Sound          . If both animals fail, face a           Shiny Object           at the herb-lisk. Its death giving           Part of                     Body           will kill itself. Beware the herb-lisk.