Physics with Jesus

It was an _____, _____ Thursday _____ in Lab _____.

Everyone was waiting for Mr Lamb to arrive. The _____ and the class fell silent in anticipation. Was it Mr Lamb? Was it Mr Sheep? No one could be certain. Suddenly the _____ burst open, and a _____ of _____ shook the building. A bright _____ light shone for a moment, and then Jesus made his entrance. Everyone was gobsmacked. One particularly _____ boy said, "Dad, why are you at school?", clearly unaware of who had actually entered. Everyone was too _____ to tell him the news - Jesus was not his father. Instead of correcting him, Jesus walked forward to the _____. "We shall not be doing any physics today. We will be walking on water," said Jesus with _____. He shepherded the _____ class to the _____ Garden, and transformed the _____ into _____. One child, who was particularly _____, fainted with _____. Nobody went _____ help him because they were all too busy walking on water. Jesus didn't give a damn either, so the child had to deal with his own problems. Jesus then turned to all the _____ in the garden and turned them into Christmas _____ by winking at them.

The kids cried with _____. "This is the _____ physics lesson ever!" one girl said through her hysterical tears. Jesus laughed. "You are all _____ and _____," he said

_____. Everyone _____.

After such an _____ turn of events, life afterwards was _____ and _____.

When

Jesus left the _____^{Location}_____ and Mr Lamb finally showed up, all the kids decided to drop physics and become nuns and priests. Mr Lamb cried because he loved his class so much and didn't want them to drop physics. When the kids tried to explain their experiences with Jesus, Mr Lamb wouldn't believe them because he said he saw Jesus _____^{Verb - Past Tense}_____ the school grounds WAY before his physics lesson. The kids ignored his desperate _____^{Noun - Plural}_____ and marched to _____^{Location}_____ _____^{Number}_____. There they hung up _____^{colour}_____ streamers all around and screamed with _____^{emotion}_____. They conjured a huge _____^{flavor}_____ cake out of nowhere, and put _____^{Number}_____ _____^{Noun - Plural}_____ on it. They all donned their party _____^{Noun - Plural}_____ and waited in eager anticipation. Jesus appeared because he was super excited as well. In the silence of the anticipation, all the kids heard the sound of _____^{Adjective}_____ footsteps approaching. "Oh my goodness, is that _____^{mr or mrs}_____ _____^{teachers name}_____?" one kid said. "Why yes, I believe so," Jesus screamed. Finally _____^{mr or mrs}_____ _____^{same teachers name}_____ appeared in the doorway. "HAPPY _____^{Number}_____ BIRTHDAY!" they all cried with gusto. Jesus was _____^{Verb - Present ends in ING}_____. _____^{mr or mrs}_____ _____^{same teachers name}_____ burst into tears and fell on the ground. "11 Black! I love you!" he _____^{Verb - Past Tense}_____. Everyone ate the cake in pure _____^{emotion}_____ and Mr Hayford felt his birthday had been properly celebrated.

In the end, Mr Hayford never stopped _____^{Verb - Present ends in ING}_____ or _____^{Verb - Present ends in ING}_____. Jesus was now in his life forever. Sarah James went on to become a first class nun and all the children attended her nun ceremonies. Jesus checked up on them all every 2 years, and Mr Lamb was left to his own shenanigans.

The

end.
