There Is a Little Big Kid I Know

There is a kid I know, a little boy. He was so little that he could sit inside of a _____ Noun cooker. Sometimes, he would sit in there and his parents would not know it, so they sometimes would press "On" and the little boy would turn into a little _____ Noun boy. That was okay with him, because it felt like an _____ Noun in there. This boy liked to roll around in circles. When he was sometimes a little _____ Noun boy he would not roll around, but instead _____ Verb around in a _____ Noun - Shape. His friends liked to join. Together they would hop around in a circle, or _____ Noun - Shape, or whatever, so fast that they would look like a giant solid _____ Noun. Of course, a very little part of it would look like _____ Noun. That little part was my friend. My little friend has to be careful, because sometimes he would fall into _____ Noun, _____ Noun, and sometimes even his own _____ Noun. I almost _____ Verb - Past Tense on him once! I was in a hurry to catch the _____ Noun - Vehicle so I ran down the stairs of my apartment, and at the turn my _____ Noun - Body Part hit the boy in the _____ Noun - Body Part. My friend just said, "Ouch," and I said "Oops, I'm sorry." He was _____ Adjective - Feeling, but I felt _____ Adjective - Feeling. After work I said "Sorry" to him and picked him up to give him a _____ Noun. He patted me on the _____ Noun - Body Part and said, "That's okay, friend." For such a little friend, he holds a big place in my heart.
