customer service letter

Dear Proper Noun

I am e-mailing you because I had a very Adjective experiences with one of your employees when I was

Verb - Present ends in ING today. Between 1 30PM-1 40PM today I was driving on S. Noun Road, and I was Adverb cut off by a color Noun with your company name printed on the side of it. Not only was I put an in danger by one of your BIG drivers, but I was also given the middle Noun by him after words. The driver then proceeded to call me a Adjective Noun animal as he passed me a second time number minutes later.

Not only was I emotion and emotion by this encounter, but I was also emotion for whoever was driving your truck and am baffled by how such a Adverb and Adverb person can hold a job at a professional business. I do not know this person's name, all that I can tell you is it was an adult animal with some serious Noun problems that was driving one of your Noun at around 1 30PM.

I seriously hope that for the good of your company, you will take some sort of action to figure out who this employee of yours was that did this and give them a Adjective Noun.

Thanks,

Proper Noun
