A girl and her turtle

There once was a little girl named Joyce who had a pet Noun . Her Noun name was Proper Noun . Proper Noun lived in Joyce's room in a small, round tank that was deep enough to hold water, but had little hills so Proper Noun could get out of the water when he wanted to. Joyce took good care of Simon. She Verb - Past Tense him every day, Verb - Past Tense his water regularly and made sure he was happy.

Joyce had a little sister named Sarah. Sarah loved her big sister, but didn't like Proper Noun . She thought Proper Noun smelled bad. His water was never clean like the water from the sink. All he did was Verb - Past Tense around. He wasn't fun like a Noun or cuddly like a Noun .

One day, Joyce came home to find that Proper Noun was gone. She looked everywhere for him everywhere - in dresser drawers, under the bed, in her pillow case, in her pencil holder - but she couldn't find him.
