The other boy...

Nearly years had passed since the Dursleys had woken up to their their nephew on the front, but Privet Drive had hardly changed at all. The sun rose on the same front gardens and lit up the brass number on the Dursleys' front ; it crept into their living room, which was almost exactly the same as it had been on the night when Mr. Dursley had seen that news report about the Animal (plural) Only the Noun - Plural on the mantelpiece really showed how much time had passed. Number years ago, there had been lots of of what looked like a large beach ball wearing different-colored showed a large blond boy riding his first, on a carousel at the fair, verb - Present ends in ING a computer game with his father, beingverb - Past Tense andverb - Past Tense by his mother. The room held no sign at all that another boy lived in the, too.
