A match made in couch surfing

Some people say that Couchsurfing is only for people that want to _____Verb - Base Form_____, but here is a _____Adjective_____ story that will make you think otherwise. Ale was a very _____Adjective_____ Argentinian man that was _____Adjective_____ and _____Adjective_____. He was travelling around and experiencing the _____Noun - Plural_____ of the world. Bine was a _____Adjective_____ German chick that could _____Verb - Base Form_____ all night and _____Verb - Base Form_____ every day while she studied in Hamburg to become a _____Noun_____. Ale's travels brought him to the _____Adjective_____ city of Hamburg, and his wallet brought him to the Couchsurfing website for a free place to stay. One look at Bine's _____Adjective_____ profile and Ale thought to himself, "Now that's a Couch that I wouldn't mind surfing!". After staying one _____Adjective_____ night, he thought that he might ask this _____Adjective_____ German chick out on a date. But Ale was very _____Adjective_____. He realized that she could say no to a date, but she couldn't say no to another _____Adjective_____ night of couchsurfing. So Ale went on to set the record for the most times ever couchsurfed at one place. His _____Adjective_____ plan worked. Eventually, Bine said to herself, "Well he's been here so many times, it's almost like he lives here. I guess we might as well become a couple." By then, they had both become _____Adjective_____. So, you see, Couchsurfing isn't just for people that want to _____Verb - Base Form_____. It has helped two wonderful people come together to share a beautiful life together.
