I worked in a           Noun           for 2 and a half years and the biggest problem I saw was           Verb - Present Tense          .

Seriously, all of the women just           Verb - Past Participle           and talked           Noun           about each other all the time.

We had 3           Preposition or subordinating conjunction           out on the           Number           one time and I was the only one actually paying attention to the           Preposition or subordinating conjunction           until I saw a           Verb           get hurt and rushed over. One of the           Noun - Plural           saw me rush over and came over and basically           Verb - Past          

          Tense           me out of the way to take over .. of course they don't want people to know they're too busy Verb - Present Tense           to each other to pay attention to the           Noun - Plural          .
