The French Revolution : The Reign of Terror

Once _____*Proper Noun*_____ Louis _____*Proper Noun*_____ was executed there was no one to rule. The radical branch of the revolution took over and a man named Robespierre came to power. The radical branch that Robespierre now controls created an unfair court system. A system that had quick trials that normally ended with the person on trial being executed. This lead to a period in the revolution known as the "Reign of Terror." The reign of terror resulted with nearly 40,000 people being executed due to the court system. Counter-revoulutionary actions were taken but none of them were successful. Eventually Robespierre was executed due to no one trusting him and through the fear of being executed.
