Once there was a Adjective Adjective girl. She was very Adjective. But she was very Adjective. She loved to Verb - Base Form and do Verb - Base Form Verb - Base Form. But no one understood why she wasn't very social. Some people called her Adjective or Adjective because she never talked all she did was work on school. But she knew what she was doing. She wasn't just a Adjective. She was a Proper Noun. All she was Noun on was learning how to Verb - Base Form a Noun that makes food out of just Noun. But she never understood the one part that was required to complete her machine. But there was this one other Noun that knew how to do it. But she was very shy. So she didn't want to ask that Noun for help. She was too afraid of what he would say. But she had to get help from Noun. So she went up and asked the boy for some help, but he asked that in return for him helping her she would go to the school Noun with him. She agreed and in the end they got the Noun to work.
