The camping trip

Once upon a time, there was a very Adjective dad. Sometimes he would fart and blame it on a Adjective animal, like a Animal, a Animal, or a Animal. His sons, whose names were First Name of a Person and First Name of a Person, thought this was very Adjective and laughed at him a lot.

But Dad did many Adjective things for his children, too. Sometimes he took them Verb - Present ends in ING and Noun climbing. Same ING verb was fun because they got to sleep in a Noun, cook Noun over the Noun, and Verb - Past Tense the woods. Same noun as above climbing was also Adjective, but it was Adjective too. The boys had to wear Adjective Noun so they wouldn't fall. Dad was a very good teacher, but still the boys were Adjective about falling and breaking their Plural body part. But they didn't fall! They Past tense verb all the way to the top of the Noun, where they raised their Plural body part triumphantly and shouted, "Exclamation!!!" At just that moment, though, Dad farted... and blamed it on a Animal.

Later, the whole family went to an all-you-can-eat Noun. This was very Adjective for the boys, because they really Past tense verb to eat. While they were there, they had Food, Food, Food, and Food. The girls, however, only ate Food and Food. Mom ate a whole plate full of _____^{Food}_____, and Dad ate six platefuls of _____^{Food}_____ and _____^{Food}_____. As you can imagine, they were all completely stuffed. Well, except for Mom. Later that night, she ate three bowls full of _____^{Food}_____ _____^{Food}_____, which made her fart a lot... since there were no animals to blame, she blamed..... Dad! for every single one.
