Operation [TF2]

He knew he'd left it somewhere. Under the [Part of Body] or the kidney. Hmm, but which kidney? Medic sifted through the [Part of Body], checked under the liver, even pushed the [Part of Body] aside.

Where could he have-

"Doktor?"

The German paused in his search. "Hm? Yes, Heavy, what is it?"

Medic's gaze didn't waver from the [Noun] until a [Adjective] hand found one of his own.

"Heavy, please, I'm trying to-"

The hand shifted and uncovered a [Noun] that had no business being lost given its [Noun].

The large hand then replaced the organ that had been hiding it - the [Part of Body].

The doctor sighed, "How long did you know?"

"As long as I have been feeling it [Verb - Present ends in ING] my side."

Medic reached for the [Noun] and took it with an appreciative stroke over the larger man's [Part of Body].

"Thank you, mein [Noun]."
